Attention: Mr. John Kollar

Dear Mr. Kollar:

I am pleased to attach a signed secrecy agreement developed in exact accordance with your request with the addition of paragraph 6 which terminates the agreement in 25 years.

As you know, Celanese Chemical Company, Inc. is a subsidiary of Celanese Corporation and this agreement and subsequent information and rights granted to CCC will also extend to Celanese Corporation.

I expect to be in contact with you before your receipt of this letter. We would like very much to move ahead on your invention and hope to be able to obtain at least preliminary information under the secrecy agreement before you have your final documents put together. Towards these ends Dr. Edward Wheeler, Vice President, Research and Development, will be calling you during my forthcoming absence overseas (I will return on or about November 20). We see no problem in forwarding a check for $10,000 as you requested within the next few days but hope that you can, upon receipt of the signed secrecy agreement, agree to meet with our people and move ahead with the preliminary exchanges. Upon my return perhaps we can move ahead with negotiations.

The general outline which you provided seems to be a fairly realistic starting point for these negotiations. I believe we could clear away the underbrush of a license negotiation leaving any juicy portions for subsequent discussions after we have received and digested all the information and you have presented your seminar.

As this letter indicates, we are appreciative of your reputation and capabilities in the area under discussion between us, and Celanese has a serious interest in moving ahead very rapidly towards the development of a fair understanding with you.

I would appreciate your countersigning one of the secrecy agreements for our files and returning it to my attention.

Very truly yours,

CELANESE CHEMICAL COMPANY, INC.
